

Do your research in Asian Studies with AeU

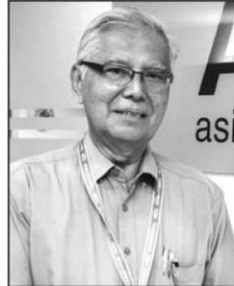

In today's increasingly complex world, the study of social sciences has never been more important. The increasing connectedness of countries and markets, brought about by globalization in trade, cross-border capital flows and the advent of new information and communication technologies, has drastically changed the dynamics of interaction among individuals, communities and governments. To fully comprehend these developments and their implications for the future development of our societies, it is imperative to adopt a multi-disciplinary approach, embracing both quantitative methods and qualitative analysis.

At the AeU School of Arts, Humanities and Social Science (SAHUSS), we stand for diversity and excellence in social science postgraduate programmes in the areas of Ethnic Studies, Economics, Gender Studies, Political Science, Sociology, Media Studies, Area Studies, Social Work, Environment, Future Studies and Policy Studies.

SAHUSS offers a two-year Research Master's programmes linked up to our top research focus areas. One of the top research areas is Asian Studies. The research area in Asian Studies is designed to ensure that students advance their knowledge on Asian societies, develop analytical competencies, gain experience in conducting practical research in Asia, and learn to communicate their findings and arguments in a clear, measured and convincing manner.

"I am thoroughly enjoying my research degree at AeU. AeU provides a wealth of knowledge and stimulating discussions with leading practitioners in the industry and talented students from all over the world with diverse experiences and views. The professors and staff are amazingly supportive. AeU's Knowledge Center also provided me with excellent access to a huge amount of information for research. I am happy about my decision to join AeU as a Master's student," says Jamaluddin Mahmud, a postgraduate student of Master of Social Science (by Research) at AeU.

The AeU Master of Social Science is a unique degree that will give students the confidence and the regional knowledge necessary to ensure that they are recognised by employers as someone who
